Flappatron: Episode 4 (Chapters 11 - 13)

Cally's Caves 3 is a platformer that takes the same zany world and characters you already know and brings them to life in a lively new way. Your goal is to chase down and beat an evil feral named Herbert, and the whole game takes place in the city of Leafleur, where people continue to live in their various caves from the original Cally's Caves game. But Herbert has become a menace, taking over the city and rising to the heights of power, using his cunning and wealth to transform the town to his whims. It's up to you and a group of the most peculiar characters out there to take the reigns of this overgrown volcanic city and save the people! © 2011 GoNintendo.co.jp As a special bonus, the soundtrack album for Cally's Caves 3 is available for purchase on Nintendo Wii at: Mod Details

----- This mod replaces all of the content in callysscapes.wad with new sprites and sounds. Note that the callysscapes.wad is required to use the mod. This mod also replaces the original music files in callysscapes.wad with alternate versions of the original soundtrack, added by me. These alternate files were created in Reaper Music Software. Both of these optional versions are set for a 400% increase in quality, resulting in great-looking music files that improve the game's music significantly. If you are having problems with game volume, please adjust the Volume value in 'Settings.ini' to a higher number, like 9/10. You may also find it necessary to change the other *.ini values in the mod's 'IniExtract' folder to accommodate for changes in music volume. Installation Instructions: Simply install the file callysscapes.wad. Note that the wad also contains a custom.ini file 'Settings.ini', which you can edit as necessary to work with your system. Simply unzip callysscapes.wad and open 'Settings.ini' in Notepad. Then change the values for all of the 'Music Volume' and 'Animation Volume' values to a number between 0 and 1, and save the file. To change the volume of music in-game, just change the value for 'Music Volume' in ' c9d1549cdd

Sep 21, 2016, 02:27 PM Hello gang, wish I had my PD back I was never going to comment until I actually got 5 halflings from the transposition engine now. I just got bored. Thanks for playing, Jio, obviously dropping a 21 is a big milestone. I have three questions I'm interested in seeing answered. These probably aren't the questions I would have asked myself before hacking my piggy, but it's been interesting. 1. What exactly happens when you drop a special? The graphic indicate they're sent to the trash as invisible. Is this all they're sent to? 2. If I add them to my hand and then drop them, do they appear? 3. Why does a 9s get put "on top" of your deck? My guess is it's because it's closer and easier to manipulate. But, then why isn't every 9s reshuffled so they're in the bottom? Thanks again, PiggyGambit Sep 21, 2016, 02:42 PM I haven't thought about the second one, but I suppose an additional game logic question is should dropping a card from a special keep the special card from being used in the game? EDIT: I've been calling the trashed cards in my hand "specials", but the list I'm looking for requires at least two visible special cards. EGO_druid Sep 21, 2016, 10:39 PM I have some thoughts on that question. If it were me I would not use any special card from the trashed to make my deck if they were special cards. But the trashed cards may be holding additional information about the hand to the opponent or user, so you might as well keep those. The question of why 9s are on top of the stack seems a little odd to me. If you want to bust a set it makes sense to place them together top-down. If you want to keep 9s in one pile then to top them or keep them together i think makes more sense. Personally I often play alongside people who place their sets in a way that you sort of want to but are reluctant to. You'll also note that I didn't say anything about color conservation. This might not have anything to do with game logic but instead a design decision. For power

CD-RUN is a game of enormous fun. It's a party game where you and seven of your friends challenge each other to beat the music and make it through the never-ending levels. CD-RUN is a game where everyone needs to try to get to the end of the level, but the only way to win is to stay on the screen longer than your seven opponents. Like a frog in the water, this party game is based on two simple principles: the level is never the same twice, it's automatically generated; and the objective is to stay on the screen longer than your opponents. Those two principles help to create a surreal party game where everyone is free to express their own style, jump or block, aim, trap and more. So if you're a fan of Chuck-e-Cheese, Burger Time or Lemmings, prepare yourself for a fantastic day of frantic fun!
